The 1970 baseball season was one of improvement from start to finish. The season opened with sound defeats at the hands of St. Point and Antigo. Then some of the sophomores started to come through and we found three boys who could do a respectable job of pitching and we started winning a game now and then. We were able to do more things correctly this year than ever before and with the experience our young players received this season. I look for a well represented Evergreen 9 to take the field again in 1971.
